It is a pity that it must close this week, but the Theodore Thomas Thomas san mer concert season begins next Monday, so the railroad interests must make way for fiddles, files and drums.

Going in at the principal entrance, one s struck with the orilliancy of the electric lights, which have almost superceded gas. In some rooms they give a dazzling light, and fixing the eyes on the burners is like trying to look at the noonday sun-Various patents are shown, some of which theker painfully. The E lison light seems to me steadiest and most agree able. It is said to give out so little hear protected hand.

The great central fountain is beautiful. with electric rights shining beneath the falling water. Various glass tanks show the same lights in the water, with fish swimming about them.

Passing to the right, I saw in an apart ment devoted to lamps and other appa ratus for lighting by oil, the Paul Revere lantern. It is about a foot square with metal frame, glass sides and ornamental top. The bottom is arranged to hold two candies, and mon it stands a rair of snuffers. Below hangs the following explanation : This lautern was the highest on the liberty tree last night, illuminated by the citizens of the town of Boston with many hundred anterns, on the arrivat to in London of the repeal of the odious Stamp Act. Boston, May 21,

Afterwards used as the beifry signal to Paul Revere-Next came a model engine, four or five feet long, and beautifully flaished. We alterwards saw several others no less at tractive.

Car seats and chairs of many styles of make and uphol-tery are shown. The mo t attractive have easy springs and are covered with India matting, which seems neater than plush or wooden materials Folding beds for directors' cars, and new devices for sleepers are interesting. I am emious to know whether any will allow the occupant of the lower beith to sit upright while dressing - most in use do not. One ingenious tel furnished a convenient writing desk when closed. A railroad velocipede, with two seats, is a novelty.

A model stock car has tanks and troughs for watering the cattle. Pipes freshing of all the stock in the car is but the work of a moment. It is a human and much needed invention.

Few sights are more interesting than the working of the electre bake, aas shown on a track by a ministure focamotive and two or three cus. The tiny sticks of wood with which the engine is fed allows us to imagine ourselves witnessing the work of fairies. The stopping of the smal train without shutting off -team is almost it stantarious;
